

Conflict Minerals Statement

This is an official statement of Shenzhen Wandtec Optronics Co. Ltd. on behalf of its affiliates and subsidiaries.

Ref: Inquiries on - Conflict Metals or Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act in 2010: Section 1502 - Conflict Minerals.

Wandtec undertakes due diligence to attempt to determine if use of any of the "conflict minerals" in our products directly or indirectly finance or benefit armed groups. Federal law defines "conflict minerals" as (i) columbite-tantalite, also known as coltan (the metal ore from which tantalum is extracted); cassiterite (the metal ore from which tin is extracted); gold; wolframite (the metal ore from which tungsten is extracted); or their derivatives; or (ii) any other mineral or its derivatives determined by the U.S. Secretary of State to be financing conflict in the Democratic Republic of the Congo or an adjoining country (collectively known as the "Covered Countries").

Wandtec has developed and implemented processes appropriate to each of those roles in the supply chain. In order to meet potential SEC reporting requirements for the limited number of products we manufacture or contract with others to manufacture, Wandtec periodically surveys suppliers that provide parts or components for those products to determine if they are using conflict minerals, the origin of any such conflict minerals, and the products in which they are used.

Suppliers to Wandtec are expected to establish their own conflict minerals policies and to cooperate with Wandtec in its efforts to identify any conflict minerals in its supply chain. Compliance with the Conflict Minerals Rule is important to Wandtec, and we conduct due diligence within the standards set forth by the Conflict Minerals Rule.

We have also reviewed our existing supply base, in particular suppliers of materials that contain "conflict minerals". We can confirm that at this time there is no indication that any products we manufacture contain minerals that directly or indirectly finance or benefit armed groups in the Covered Countries.
